

One of the conditions that determines the validity of a study is the reliability of the examiner(s). Interrater reliability is:

- When two or more examiners record the same conditions the same way over time
- When two or more examiners view subjects in the same conditions the same way over time
- When one examiner records the same conditions the same way over time
- When one examiner views subjects in the same conditions the same way over time